"The General Zapped an Angel was written for fun, and offers me a chance to smile at the absurdity of human existence. Therefore, these stories of fantasy and science fiction are among the most serious writing I have done." (Howard Fast)

Nearly forty years after the publication of his first story, "The Wrath of Purple," in the science fiction magazine Amazing Stories, Howard Fast returned to the genre with a set of nine supremely entertaining tales. In this collection, a Vietnam general shoots down what appears to be an angel, a man sells his soul to the devil for a copy of the next day's Wall Street Journal, and a group of alien beings bestow a mouse with human thought and emotion. Fast, one of the best-selling authors of the twentieth century, skewers war hawks, oil speculators, and profit-at-all-costs capitalism, issues that are still relevant today.

Highly Recommended

By Paul F. Brooks

Howard Fast (1914-2003) was a celebrated and controversial American writer who, upon occasion, wrote science-fiction stories. "The General Zapped an Angel", first published in 1969, is a collection of 8 stories - seven of which had never been previously published. The exception is the story "The Mouse" which was featured in the November 1969 issue of The Magazine of Fantasy and Science Fiction.

In this reader's opinion a science-fiction short story that keeps your interest and shows a commendable degree of originality and creativity is a rare commodity indeed. The fact that the stories in this collection meet my subjective criteria is a detail I find quite amazing. I would go so far to say that this relatively slim volume would be an excellent text for anyone foolish enough to aspire to write short fiction.

-The Mouse: Just what would happen if aliens infused a common field mouse with intelligence - and then left him as an abandoned experiment?

-"The Wound": Using atomic weapons to release underground oil deposits may disturb more than sand and gas.

-"The Movie": Some folks find reel life more real than, well, real life.

- "The Mohawk": A Mohawk Indian parks himself in front of St. Patrick's Cathedral for some deep meditation much to the consternation of the local parish priest.

- "The Insects": Our friends the bugs start broadcasting a disturbing message "You must stop killing us".

- "The Vision of Milty Boil": A very short, extremely wealthy contractor keeps building vast high rise apartment buildings with lower and lower ceiling heights.

- "Tomorrow's Wall Street Journal": Would you like a copy...well the Devil will give you one for a price.

- "The General Zapped an Angel": One day in Vietnam a US General shot one of God's angels from a helicopter gun ship and then...

- "The Interval": If our earthly landscape was one big elaborate movie set what would happen when the show was over?

A Wonderful Secret Find Of Magic & Science.

By Ron Kolman

You'd likely skip over this softcover on almost all conditions. There is no flag to the wonderful, magical tales inside. Howard Fast paints stories of wonder, sadness and curiosity in this short paperback of short stories. The stories "tug" at you, and it's a book difficult to put down. Somewhere between child-like innocence, and the drama that life often carries, you'd do well to pick up a copy. I can almost assure you (if you enjoy science fiction) and a great twist in the expected) you'll pass your copy on to someone you feel 'must' read one or all the stories, and find yourself back here ordering another copy Amazon. I've passed at least five copies along, and told the book is a "treasure" for the heart. HIGHLY RECOMMENDED!

Fast is a solid golden age SF writer. He obviously loves playing ideas and exploring them in novel ways. He does just that. Enjoyable, hopeful stories that are well worth reading.
